THE DUDE.

"What is the Dude, papa," she said. With sweet enquiring eyes;
And to the knowledge seeking maid
Her daddy thus replies:

A weak mustache, a cigarette, A thirteen buttoned vest, A curled rim hat—a minaret— Two watch chains cross the breast:

A pair of bangs, a lazy drawl, A lack-a-daisy air! For gossip at the club or ball Some little past "affair."

Two pointed sharks, two spindled shanks Complete the nether charms; And follow filthy in the ranks The two bow-legged arms!

An empty head, a boffoon's sense, A poising attitude!
"By jove!" "Egad!" "But aw!" "Immense!" All these make up a Dude.

You should all monkey to the grand stand this afternoon.

WHEN you have occasion to send small sums of money now, say from 25 cents to this week. $4.99, you can buy one of those new postal notes from your postmaster for 3 cents, and safely transmit it in a letter. It is much cheaper than the money order and registercd letter systems, and is not half the trouble. The new law regarding these postal notes went into effect yesterday. They are handsome brown-backed notes, much resembling the U.S. Treasury gold notes.

THE circus at Lexington Saturday was attended by 20,000 in the afternoon, and i5,000 at the nights performance. In the afternoon several hundred were refused admittance, owing to every seat being taken. It was the largest show and the largest day ever Lexington experienced. #### Friendly Advice.

If the Kentucky Central magnates will furnish ample passenger accommodations on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, of this week, our fair will be the largest attended than ever before. On Saturday the transportation was not over half equal to the demand, and hundreds of our best citizens had to stay home in consequence of the rougher element taking possession of the trains. The road may be doing all it can with its present transportation facilities, mands that every passenger shall have a scat, on excursion as well as regular

PARIS, : : KENTUCKY NEWS OF THE WEEK

Condensed and Put Into Readable Shape.

DOMESTIC.

A young girl seventeen years of age, named Bertha Olsen, who has been employed as a domestic in St. Louis, has been missing since the 25th. She is described as rather tall, with dark brown eyes, and can be readily recognized by a strawberrymark on her right cheek. Some of her acquaintances think she has eloped, but her parents incline to the belief that she has been kidnaped. A CONDUCTOR on the Chicago and Alton Railroad had a private detective arrested a few days ago for following him, and the Justice fined the detective ten dollars.

NEARLY one thousand old soldiers of the Confederate and Union armies were in attendance at the ex-Confederate reunion which began at Jefferson City, Mo., on the 28th.

N. M. SMITH, a Nashville man, a few days ago received a box of what purported to be wedding cake by mail. He ate two pieces and was taken very sick. The cake was analyzed and found to contain strychnine.

THE great Cathedral of Incarnation and St. Paul's School at Garden City, L. I., were pronounced completed on the 29th. The cathedral has been five years and the school three years in building. The money, nearly $3,000,000, has been furnished by the Stewart estate. The school building is said to be the finest educational structure in the world. It will accommodate five hundred

THE steamer Britannia, under way from Marseilles to New York, was struck by a cyclone on the morning of the 26th. The sea seemed drawn toward the clouds and dashed over the vessel, carrying away the boats and the rails. The lightning seemed to jump from the sea to the clouds, and the wind came from every point of the compass. The straining steamer was whirled around like an egg-shell. Daylight turned to darkness, and there was the greatest consternation on board. The cyclone vanished as suddenly as it came, when the crippled vessel was still capable of making her port. Not a life was lost.

THE recent suit of the negro preacher, George H. Smith, of Norwieh, Conn., against a Washington restauranteur, is likely to lead to trouble in the Louisville hotels during the session of the Colored Convention in that eity. The Georgia delegation, headed by W. A. Pledger, it is said, intend to insist upon full equality at the hotels. #### FATAL EXPLOSION.

The Steamer Riverdale Blown Up in New York Harbor-Four Persons Known to Have Been Killed, and Many Others Were Badly Injured.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29. Several persons were killed and the river steamer Riverdale sunk by a boiler explosion Tuesday afternoon. The boat, which ran between New York and Haverstraw, on the Hudson, left her dock at the foot of Harrison street, North River, at 4 o'clock, and steamed rapidly up the stream. She was to have touched at the foot of 23d street for more passengers, and her course was laid about three hundred yards from the New York shore. When between Twelth and Thirteenth streets her boilers exploded with terrific force, killing three persons and wounding eight others. After the explosion the boat drifted up to the foot of Sixteenth street and there sank. The explosion was seen by a few rivermen and tug crews who were watching the boat when the accident occurred. There was a loud report, the smoke stack, pilot-house and the body of a man were seen flying through the air, and then clouds of escaping steam hid the wreck from view. People along the shore went to the steamer in row-boats and tugs, and the police were instantly informed of the accident. The office of charities and corrections was notified by telephone, and all the city ambulances were sent to the foot found in McDermott's trunk from Con- of Sixteenth street. The wildest and most exaggerated reports were circulated, and the number of killed and wounded was placed at upwards of one hundred. The river front in the vicinity where the explosion occurred was thronged with people, and while but few of the scores said to have been killed were brought ashore, it was averred that dozens had been drowned. There were about fifty passengers on the Riverdale when she left the Harrison street landing, and a majority of them were on the after-deck.

As soon as the explosion occurred a scene Captain, J. P. Smith, who was uninjured, rushed to the after part of the boat and told the half frantie passengers that if they would only keep quiet for a few moments they THE treaty between France and Tonquin | plank was run out into the river and half a dozen men jumped upon it, sinking it below the surface of the water. The dead were taken to the morgue and the injured to St. Vincent's and the New York hospitals. The engineer was about entering the engine-room to slow up, as another steamboat was at their landing, when an ominous rumble was heard proceeding from the boiler, and in a moment the terrible explosion occurred, blowing out the entire inside of the vessel, and leaving only the helpless, sinking hull. The force of the explosion was downward, apparently, the rapidity with which the vessel sank showing that the bottom had been blown out. The river was strewn with wreekage—cabin doors, beams, boards and furniture floating about and proving the force of the explosion. Accounts of the manner of the explosion differ. Those on the boat agree that it was sudden and entirely without warning. A policeman, who had been a boiler-maker, and who was standing at the foot of Bloomfield street, declares that his attention was attracted by the sound of escaping steam. Looking out on the river he saw the Riverdale going up stream, partly enveloped in steam, that escaped with a loud roar from her side. He saw people rush from the throw themselves in the river. The next moment the explosion came.

The steam yachts of Jay Gould and E. S Jaffrey were lying at the foot of Twentythird street. Both Gould and Jaffrey had just gone ashore when the aecident occurred. Upon hearing the explosion they immediately turned about, and, putting out to the scene of the wreck in their gigs, ordered their yachts to follow without delay. Both engaged in the work of giving aid wherever needed with great zeal. When their yachts appeared all who were in sight in the water had been picked up.

Weekly Review of the Louisville Leaf To bacco Market.

The receipts for the week were 880 hhds. against 970 hhds. last week, and 680 hhds. in the corresponding week of 1882. The market has been in a very healthy, animated condition, though there have been no speculative motives or incitements, and trade has depended wholly upon legitimate influences. The requirements of home manufacturers are increasing again, to judge from the fact that some of the principal concerns which have recently held aloof are again free bidders. The foreign demand on regie and other account, has also been active, and the market has been generally favorable to sellers. In Burley tobacco the variou grades of medium leaf have quite recovered from the decline previously noticed, ar. advance of $1@3 having been manifested. Good and fine grades have not varied materially. Fillery and smoking lugs, which were exempt from the late decline, have continued firm and about stationary, though very active. If all one hears be true, not a few of the American guests at the Marlborough fete gave an exhibition of this fashion, and one has but to go to Newport, Long Branch and other resorts to see that an effort is being made to introduce the use of paints and other cosmetiques more freely than before for years."

enjoy the necessaries of cleanliness, ventilation, good food, and good treatment; and when a mangy horse is emaciated, or otherwise constitutionally enfeebled, he must receive tonic and alteratives, such as gentian, sulphur, and antimony, and a varied supply of generous diet. Every mangy horse, whether strong or feeble, under-fed or over-fed; must either be well-washed with soft soap and water, and rubbed with some special liniment, or freely sponged with some medicated liquid, which shall serve the purpose of both wash and liniment. Among the good liniments may be mentioned a mixture of diluted creasote or carbolic acid and oil of tar; and among the lotions may be mentioned one consisting of, say—two ounces of white hellebore, two ounces of tobacco, one pint of strong, fresh-made:lime water, and three pints of soft water; the hellebore and the tobacco boiled in the water until it evaporates down to a quart, and the lime water added after the other has cooled. Mange in cattle most frequently arises from contagion; and if it gets into a dairy, it will often run through all the cows. It may also arise from filth, sometimes from luxurious feeding, oftener from very poor feeding, and most of all from a sudden transition from starvation to rich and full feeding. A mild and ordinal y form of it is indicated by the hide-b ound appearance of the animal, by the dryness, harshness and looseness of the hair, and by the itchiness of the animal, indicated by its frequently rubbing and licking itself. Aggravated forms of mange are indicated by scurfiness along the back and in patches at other places, by restless and wiolent itcliness, by loss of condition and consequerit prominence of the benes and diminution of the secre-

Mangy cattle should be removed to some remote stable or shed, out of communication with others. Their scurfiness should be reduced by gentle use of the curry comb or of a hard brush. The disease should be subdued by freely rubbing in of some suitable remedial agent with a brush or with the hand, and the entire constitution should be gently acted on by laxative or alterative medicines. A good remedy:for external use may be made of one pound of flowers of sulphur, two cunces of strong mercurial ointment, six ounces of common turpentine, and one and a half pounds of lard; the turpentine and the land to be melted together; the sulphur to be well stirred in when the mixture begins to cool; and the mercurial ointment to be afterwards incorporated by rubbing on a marble slab. Internally, as an alterative, may be given a powder com- LIVESTOCK-Cuttle-common $2 00 60 3 00 posed of two ounces of flower of suiphur, one ounce of black antimony. balf an ownee of Æthiop's mineral and two ounces of nitre; the whole to he mixed together, and divided into four powders, and one of the powders to be given every second morning in a quart of thin gruel from a bottle .-Prairie Furmer.

Fairs and Cattle Shows.

The present system of fairs and cat tle shows originated with Elkanah Watson, an Albany merchant, abou 1810. His application to Boston for guarantee funds was met by ex-President Adams with a terse rebuff: "You will get no aid from Boston. Com merce, literature, theology, medicine, the university and university politics are all against you." Nevertheless the more liberal Legislature of New York an 1819 appropriated $10,000 a year for cix years, to be divided among its counties for the encouragement of agriculture and manufactures. In 1818, enveral months before the passage of this act, several of the most prominent citizens of Washington County met in the Court House at Sandy Hill and organized a County Agricultural Society. The first recorded fair was held at Salem in 1822, with entries for premiums, a plowing match, "plowmen in white frocks," and an address delivered in the church.—Exchange.

A Texas Bear Story.

A gentleman was out hunting recently on the Nueces. He had killed a good deal stable, bad diet, and improper keeping, of small game while out during the day, he must undergo a prompt and total and was returning home a short while change of regimen, and henceforth before dark, with just enough ammunition to load his rifle and put four shots in his pistol. This was unfortunate, too, in one respect, as will be seen further on. In pursuing the journey toward home, this mighty hunter, for so he can fairly be called, saw a bear go into a hollow tree, and resolved to have some bear meat. He compelled bruin to descend from his hiding place, and shot him dead with the rifle as he emerged from the hollow. Another bear soon made its appearance from the same trec, no doubt to see what was the cause of all the racket on the outside, and met with the same fate as the former, this time shot with the trusty pistol. A pair of dead bears is a pretty good days work for one hunter, but they continued to come out of that tree at a rapid rate until five were piled up dead on the ground. Five shots only the hunter had, and every shot made a dead bear. But that was not all. Two more grown bears made their appearance, The hero of this wonderful story had no more ammunition left, but his bravery was equal to the occasion. He attacked them with his empty gun and made such a desperate battle that the bears, crippled and wounded, fled from the scene of that mighty and terrible confliot, leaving the hunter in peaceful possession of his five dead trophies, and the hero of one of the most remarkable battles on record.—San Antonio .Ex-

> -A feature of the Santa Fe celebration was to have been a sham battle, intended to represent the capture of an Indian pueblo by the Spaniards. The Indians climbed to the top of one of the buildings, brandishing their bows and arrows, and emitted shrill, ear-piercing shrieks. The bold Spaniards paused. The original plan was for the cavaliers to pretend to assault the pueblo, and the Indians were to let fly a shower of blunt:arrows into the ground at their feet. But it occurred to the knights that arrows might go astray, and they declined to take the risk.

The Preacher's Quiet Habits.

Sedentary and studious men sometimes become prostrated before they know it. Those who spend much time in close mental work and neglect to take enough exercise often find their stomachs unable to do the work of digestion. The liver becomes torpid. The bowels act irregularly. The brain refuses to serve as it once did. Their preaching becomes a failure, and there is a state of general misery. So many ministers have been restored to health by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters that the clergy generally are speaking to their friends of this medicine as the very best tonic and restorer they know of. It restores thin and watery blood to its proper condition by toning it up with the purest and most invigorating preparation of iron that science has ever made. Eminent Testimony.

[N. Y. Witness, Aug. 15, 1880.] I find that in addition to the pure spirits contained in their composition, they contain the extracts of bops and other well-known and highly approved medicinal roots, leaves and tinctures in quantities sufficient to render the article what the makers claim it to be, to wit, a medicinal preparation and not a beverage—unfit and a safe to be used except as a medicine.

"From a careful analysis of their formula -which was attested under oath-I find that in every wine-glassful of Hop Bitters. the active medicinal properties aside from the distilled spirits are equal to a full dose for an adult, which fact, in my opinion, subjects it to an internal revenue tax as a medicinal bitter."

"LOOK OUT FOR THE ENGINE."

I am a locomotive engineer, and have been for twenty years, and am now running on the Maine Central Railroad. Life on an engine, as all engineers know, is very trying to health and strength. The continual jar of the engine, and stral 1 on our long trips all tend to weaken the kidneys and urinary organs. In addition to this, ten years ago, I met with a severe accident, and I was taken from under my engine with severe internal injuries, which gave me great paln. I was laid up for six months, and suffered more than I can describe, and more than I wish to suffer again. I resumed work, but my kidneys began to disturb me, and my nervous system seemed to be out of order. I could not sleep, as my water demanded such constant attention that I was kept awake a great part of the night: to urinate cansed severe palas. I employed the best medical skill in Portland and elsewhere, but continued to grow worse. I was persuaded to try Hunt's Remedy, as I found that many of my friends in Portland had used it with great success, yet I had no faith that it would reach my case. However, I sent for a half-dozen bottles at one of the drug stores, in Portland, and from the use of the first bottle found a great relief. My water was much better and the pain in the back and limbs greatly relieved. I continued its use until I had used ten bottles In all, and It has been to me a wonderful blessing, and I have deemed it a duty and privilege to recommend it to those troubled in a similar manner: and you may

DR. SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SEAWEED TONIC,

and MANDRAKE PILLS.

As the proprietor of these medicines I conscientionsly offer them to the public as safe, reliable and certain remedies for the Cure of Consumption, and with equal confidence as almost a specific for those morbid conditions of the body, which, if neglected, are apt to terminate in fatal diseases of the lungs. I claim that the use of my remedies will cure Con-

I do not claim that the disease can be cured after the lungs are destroyed, for no medicine can create new ones; but I maintain that the first stages of Consamption are curable, even when the lungs are partially decayed. When one lung is sound I am almost certain of making a cure, if the patient will take proper care of himself aud follow my directions.

It may be asked: "How is It that you can know so much about this disease, and pretend to cure it, when so many educated physicians, who have made a study of it for years, pronounce it incurable?" The question is a fair one, and shall be fairly answered: I do not claim to know more than other physicians about the causes, nature and history of Consumption. I suppose that my views on these points would be found to agree with those of most educated and intelligent physicians. We should agree that while the final cause is obscure—in other words, while it is not possible to say why Consumption selects this or that person as a victim-yet the predisposing

1st, Inheritance. Consumption is hereditary in a wonderful degree. One parent very often entails it npon the offspring, and both still more frequently, so that whole families are often swept away, and hand the predisposition down to their children.

2d, Cold. By this we do not mean those changes of weather which often produce inflammation; but longned and steady cold, so that a condition of de bility is produced. Indeed, whatever tends to produce long-continued debility will, in some persons, generate Pulmonary Consumptiou. Prominent among these influences are insufficient diet, living in an unwholesome air. sedentary habits, grief, anxlety, disappointment, whether of the affections or in business, and all other depressing emotions; the abuse of mercury and the influence of weakening diseases, I also agree with the best doctors as to the manner in which the lnngs become affected. Pulmonary Consumption is also called Tuberculous Consumption, by which we mean a disease of the lungs cansed by tubercles. A tubercle is a smail, roundish body, which is deposited in the substance of the lungs by the blood. This is the beginning and first act of the Wacase. Many of these are often deposited at ouce. Each one undergoes several changes. After producing Inflammation of the parts of the lung next to it, it ends in ulceration, opens a passage into the bronchial tnbes, and passes ont at the mouth by spitting. The place where the tubercle grew and ripened now becomes a cavity, and where there are a great many tubercles, of course they make a great many of these little cavities, which gradually unite and leave great holes in the lungs. Unless a stop can be put to this process, it will go on until the substance of the lungs a consumed and death ensues.

Of course I agree with the faculty npon the symptoms and conrse of the disease; the short, dry, hacking cough, so slight at first, but gradually increasing; then shortness of breath, a quickening pulse, then feverish sensations, flushing of the cheeks and heat in the palm of the hands and soles of the feet; the slight but growing emaciation, with feeble appetite, hemorrhages, increasing cough, disturbed sleep, fevered tongue, then loss of appetite, taken to the bed, then expectoration of softened inbercle in the shape of small lumps of yellowish, cheesy, or curdy matter; hectic fever, bri-liant eye. chills, night sweats, sharp pains in the side, increasing emaciation and debility, disordered stomach and bowels, diarrhoa, nausea, swollen extremities, hollow cheeks, sunken eyes, wakness so great that expectoration is impossible: then death, bringing welcome relief from the tortures of this horrid monster.

Now, as I have said, I mainly agree with the medical faculty on these points. But when we come to the treatment of the disesse I differ from it totally. The doctors believe Enlmonary Consumpti n cannot be cured. Therefore they do not try to do anything more than to smooth the pati n.'s path to the grave, and seem gulte reckless of the medicines they give, so that. the patient is kept comfortable and easy, even if his life is shortened. As soon as tubercles begin to sprear in the lungs of a patient, it is a common practice with many leading physicians to begin desing with whisky in increasing quantities, until the ravages of excessivedram-drinking are added to the ravage; of the disease; and I have yet to hear of a single case of Consumption which was cured by stimulants. I can say the same of Cod Liver Oil. Many physicians send their patients away from home on distant voyages, to Minnesota or F.orlda-anything or anywhere so that they may die easy. For they do not pretend to cure, and they have no remedien which will do so. Now I say not only that diseases of the lungs can be enred, but that my medicin s do cure them. The proof is, that by their use thousands of Consumptives have been and are now being cured by them.

The whole science of incdicine is based on experiments. We cannot by any process of reasoning decide that any particular medicine will help or cure a 1y particular disease. How was it found that Quinine will cure Chills and Fevers? Why. by trying one thing after another, until experience demonstrated that is was a specific for the disease. In just that way the knowledge was gained of my remedies, which are almost a specific in diseases of the lungs

Pulmonary Consumption is hereditary in my father's family. His father, mother, brothers and sisters died of it, and he had reached almost the last stages of the disease when he was providentially led to experiment with the articles which are incorporated in these medicines. He was cured by them, and lived a strong, healthy man for over forty years after his recovery. What cured him has cured thousands of others all over the country. These results are not accidental. There is no such thing as accident in nature. Whatever may be the cause, the origin of Pulmonary Consumption is in the blood. Whenever, from any of the predisposing causes which I have just now mentioned, the blood becomes degenerated, it begins to make tuberculous deposits in the substance of the lungs. This must be stopped, or death will surely follow. It will not be enough to get rid of the tuberclesalready deposited, and heal up the sores already made. but something must be done to stop further deposits.. What shall that be? The regular faculty say nothing can be done. I say purify, enrich, and tone up the blood, until it becomes so healthy, as no longer to make tubercles. Can this be done? Yes. How? By the easiest and most natural way in the world. Take a man who shows to the experienced eye, by many infallible signs, that Cousumption has set in. He isfeeble and without appetite, Now, see what I intend

First, I propose to cleanse his stomach and bowels of their dead, slimy, clogging matter. This i shall do with my Mandrake Pills, which are the best cathartic pills in the world. They contain no calomel or other minerals, only vegetable matter. They evacuate the stomach and bowels gently but thoroughly, and donot weaken or gripe. They act like magic on the liver, rousing it out of its dull, torpid state, and promoting a ful, free flow of healthy bile, without whichthere can be no perfect digestion. Now that the stomach and bowels are cleansed and ready-what next? Create an appetite. This I do by my Sea Weed: like a temporary stimulant, which by reaction lets the organs affected sink lower than before, this not only tones up the stomach, but keeps it toned up. The natural craving for food returns in all its force, so that we have now a stomach hungry for food, and a dicostive apparatus ready to make way with it. What next? Any one can answer that question. Put into that hungry stomach an abundant supply of nutritious food to be converted by the strunge chemistry of digestion into rich red blood. This will stimulate the heart into stronger action, and it will pump a fuller current out through the arteries; healthy blood will. take the place of the thin, blue, flatten id fluid in the veins, and soon a circulation will be established which: will flow through the lungs without making any unhealthy deposits; strength and flesh will increase, and the bad symptoms steadily diminish. At the same time use my Pulmonic Syrup; Itis the best expecto. rant known. It blends with the food, and through theblood goes directly to the lnugs, attacks and loosens. up the yellow, foul stuff left there by the ripened: tubercles, and strengthens and stimulates the bronchial tubes and coatings of the air-passages until theyget strong enough to ilft it out and capel it by expectoration. Then the lungs get over their sorenessand have a chance to rest and heal.

So you see that I have not only shown that my medicines do actually cure consumption by experiment, but it also seems plain that they, or some thing like them, would, from the nature of the case;

It would be folly for us to add words of a eulogium character to his national or local fame. We will be content to simply say that the proud old Commonwealth will have a Governor whom she will be proud of-one whom we can safely cite as the peer of any of the thirty-seven States in the Union-one who will be respected both home and abroad.

To him shall we look with confidence during the next four years as the ruler of the whole people, with an abiding faith that he knows his duty, and that he'll perform it well. He has seen the error of precedents, and knows the will of the people, and will rule accordingly-not harshly, but well.

He has our utmost confidence—thats all we can give. He needs no advice, therefore it would be presumptious for us, even anyone to offer suggestions. I remember once when I was watching the busy little hornet gathering honey and June bugs from the bosom of a rose, years ago, I stirred him up with a club, more as a practical joke than anything else, and he came and lit on my sunny hair-that was when I wore my own hair -and he walked around through my gleaming tresses quite awhile, making tracks as large as a watermelon all over my head. If he hadn't run out of tracks my head would have looked like a load of summer squashes.
